Nov 21, Nadav Halali rated it did not like it. A multiplace chamber is the preferred facility for treatment of decompression sickness as it allows direct physical access to the patient by medical personnel, but monoplace chambers are more widely available and should be used for treatment if a multiplace chamber is not available or transportation would cause significant delay in treatment, as the interval between onset of symptoms and recompression is important to the quality of recovery. In some ways, this makes the later books more rewarding, as things that were left a mystery in book one make much more sense later on. Free shipping incl.
